CANCER SCREENING PACKAGE

Cancer, also known as malignancy is a group of diseases involving all systems and organs in the body resulting in abnormal cell growth with the potential to invade or spread to other parts of the body. Not all tumors are cancerous; benign tumors do not spread to other parts of the body.

Signs and Symptoms

Includes a new lump, abnormal bleeding, a prolonged cough, unexplained weight loss, urinary symptoms or bleeding and a change in bowel movements among others. While these symptoms may indicate cancer, they may also occur due to other diseases.

Contributory Factors

Tobacco, obesity, a poor diet, lack of physical activity including other factors like chronic infections, exposure to ionizing radiation, and environmental pollutants. Some cancers are due to genetic defects inherited from parents.

Detection

Cancer can be detected by certain signs and symptoms or screening tests. It is then typically further investigated by medical imaging and confirmed by biopsy. Early detection through screening is helpful.

Prevention

Many cancers can be prevented by not smoking, maintaining a healthy weight and life, eating plenty of vegetables, fruits and whole grains, being vaccinated against certain infectious diseases, not eating too much processed foods and avoiding too much excessive exposure to sunlight.

Treatment

Cancer is often treated either with a surgical procedure or with some combination of radiation therapy, chemotherapy, and targeted therapy. Pain and symptom management are an important part of care. Palliative care is particularly important in those with advanced disease.
